Short Anime Creation Tool “Anicast Maker”
Announces a Make-Your-Own Video Contest With Pompo: The Cinéophile!
~The Movie’s Director, Hirao Will Judge, and Users Can Win Great Prizes!~

Avex Technologies, creators of Anicast Maker, the tool that lets anyone make anime in VR, announced today the video contest announced today the “Pompo and Natalie are here!” short video contest. The contest will run between August 20th and September 3rd, and users are invited to upload short anime with characters from Pompo: The Cinéophile to win!

■ Submit a Pompo: The Cinéophile Video and Win Prizes!

Anicast Maker is the simple and easy way for anybody to make their very own videos in VR! Be the actor, be the cameraman, place props and backgrounds, whatever you need to bring your creative dream to life. The tool comes with tons of backgrounds, props, and character motions for you to jump right in and make all kinds of animations. You can even upload your videos to social media to get an instant reaction from your audience.

The publisher will be holding a contest to celebrate their latest asset packs for the movie, featuring Pompo and Natalie Woodward. Make a video with AniCast Maker and the Pompo: The Cinéphile asset pack (sold separately) and upload it to twitter with the hashtag #ACM_pompo. We'll rank the submissions and give prizes to the best. Director Hiraio and the staff of the movie will be serving as judges, too!
